

Anson Williams

Anson Williams is best known for his Golden Globe nominated role on the series, “Happy Days.” For over the past two decades he has been an award-winning television director and writer; directing over 300 hours of television, including LA Law, Steven Spielberg’s “Sea Quest,” Pretender, Lizzie Maguire, Melrose Place, Charmed, 90210, Star Trek Voyager, Deep Space Nine, Hercules, Zena, HBO’s “All American Murder” starring Christopher Walken, Profiler, and the award winning, Shailene Woodley starring hit, “Secret Life of the American Teenager.”

For his writing, Anson has won the prized Humanitus Award, and was honored by the National Association of Student Leaders. Anson was on the National board of USO, and was instrumental in making the entertainment division profitable for the organization. Anson is also a successful entrepreneur, cofounding an international product company.

Anson has been honored by the United States Patent and Trademark Office for his expertise in product trademarking which included a speech by Anson along with the under Secretary Of Commerce. Anson inspired and supported by his famous uncle, Dr. Henry Heimlich, created the lifesaving product, Alert Drops, that has saved thousands of lives from drowsy driving and exhaustion in the work place. Alert Drops has been honored by the United States Congress, California State Senate, and the city of Los Angeles.

He has helped VictimsFirst behind the scenes and traveled to D.C. to speak with the head of the Dept. of Education and to Parkland after the Marjory Stoneman Douglas shooting in Florida to share how to re-integrate traumatized children into a safe, learning environment. He did this based on first-hand experience with his own children in CA.

VICTIMS FIRST

© Victims First, Inc. 2024