

Caren Teves

On July 20, 2012, Caren experienced every parent's worst nightmare. Her first born son, Alex, was murdered in the Aurora theater shooting while heroically shielding his girlfriend from gunfire. The theater shooting left 12 dead and over 70 injured. Alex was only 24 years old.

In the days immediately following the murder of their first born child, Caren and her husband Tom founded NoNotoriety, a movement dedicated to reducing rampage mass murders by limiting the name and face of the killers in the media. Notoriety is a known and consistent motivating factor of rampage mass shooters.

In honor and memory of her son, Caren is also the founder and director of the Alexander C. Teves ACT-Foundation.org which awards scholarships to students in need to attend Humanex Academy, providing students with a specialized environment to build confidence, social skills, emotional strength and intelligence. Caren received the Courage Award from the National Center for Victims of Crime for her work on behalf of crime victims.
